

East Bay Center for the Performing Arts Media Release

As a community-based non-profit arts program, The East Bay Center for the Performing Arts is required to record performances, rehearsals, lessons, workshops, classes, interviews, and student-created film and media work for documentary purposes. These may be in any form of audio or visual documentation.

This material is required:

- By our foundation, private and governmental funding agencies for reporting purposes to assure continued funding and to seek out new source of revenue.
- To create promotional, informational, and educational materials. These may include printed fliers, programs and brochures; video and audio materials for our websites: for informational television or radio broadcasts.
- Other strictly promotional, informational, and educational purposes

These materials are not used for:

- Commercial audio or visual recordings
- Representation or inclusion in any commercial interests, i.e., any agency that would use these materials for a “for profit” use.

This release is required of all students who wish to participate any Center programs, either on or off site. This same release is also required of all faculty and staff.

Strict privacy is always maintained. In promotional materials, no students are identified by name; private family and student information is never given to the public.

Please read the following statement and sign below:

On behalf of myself and my minor child, I hereby authorize the East Bay Center for the Performing Arts, its officer, employees, agents and successors to photograph, film, tape digitally record, or otherwise create audio and video recordings, still images, textual descriptions, and testimonials, and/or to otherwise use any image or recording of this student, performances, practices, class footage, or any other class or media projects. I understand that we waive any right of approval for the final form for which these images and recordings are used and that we will not receive financial compensation for use of these materials. We also agree to hold the East Bay Center and its associates harmless for liability of any nature. We understand that the Center will use this material in a respectful manner and solely for promotional, informational or educational purposes.
