OUR MISSION

East Bay Center for the Performing Arts engages youth and young adults in imagining and creating new worlds for themselves and new visions for their communities through the inspiration and discipline of rigorous training in world performance traditions.

WHAT WE BELIEVE

We at East Bay Center for the Performing Arts passionately believe in the power of art to create beauty and new ways of seeing the world. We believe in the ability of the performing arts to give voice to the silent, to unite peoples of diverse backgrounds, and to help realize the fullest potential of communities and the individuals who live in them. We affirm the importance of connecting the creative and uplifting powers of the arts with children and youth who in their daily lives must contend with systemic poverty, violence, and other barriers to peace, justice, and prosperity. We welcome all who find resonance with and are committed to these beliefs.

WHAT WE DO

We offer diverse youth and young adults opportunities to grow and excel as learners, creators of art, and contributors to their communities. We provide broad and strategic community-based and public school performing arts access programs; rigorous individual and ensemble training; an intensive four-year, interdisciplinary diploma program; advanced internships; and commissions for new works of art. Our students, partners, and audiences deepen their experience and engagement with the life-affirming and community-building impact of music, theater, dance, and media-making from a critical selection of the world’s great cultures.
ARTISTIC DIRECTOR’S LETTER

Since I began my tenure as Artistic Director in 1985, East Bay Center has engaged over 100,000 youth, grown a faculty and staff of nearly 100, quietly launched a permanent endowment fund and gained the trust of our community. Through the Center’s School and Neighborhood Partnerships Program, one in seven children in local Richmond schools, housing projects and recreation centers are supported annually in the work of self-discovery and creative skills acquisition. Together, we have built a place where artists from around the world celebrate and advocate for the beauty and gifts of every child. And, through our Young Artist Diploma Program, we now support an average of 20 teens to attend college nationally and internationally each year – building a critical mass of young adults who see the world in a different light than their grandparents and great grandparents.

Technically, writing this annual report is about due diligence and our work of this last year, but it is also about appreciation for your support. Please be certain that all of us at the Center are moved by your participation in our work and grateful for your contributions of resources and spirit. Every bit of new resource that finds its way to the Center helps to define the coming generations. I look forward to navigating there together.

Anually, East Bay Center provides hands-on instruction and mentoring to 3,500 students through public school partnerships, and an additional 600 students at our Iron Triangle home, which includes 140 7th-12th graders enrolled in our six-year, year-round, tuition-free Young Artist Diploma Program. Our mission here at East Bay Center goes beyond training in the arts. Center staff and faculty are deeply committed to providing an exceptional, nurturing, and rich environment where students are engaged to discover their inherent gifts, their fullest potential and deepest strengths.

We have used our decades of experience and our recent successful $16 million capital campaign to transform an aging, inner city facility into the finest arts center in the region, and we have the physical capacity to serve hundreds more young people. We continue to aim at a degree of excellence that has been achieved by only a handful of arts/youth development organizations in the country. In order to accomplish this aim, as well as secure our commitment to coming generations of children and youth in Richmond, we are seeking to both grow our annual fund and increase a new exciting permanent asset fund, to ensure the quality of core programs, as well as the development of new ones for the next 50 years.
Antoine Hunter  Dance

In August 2018, Olivya directed the dark theater piece, “The Pillowman,” by Martin McDonagh, at the Center. Olivya now attends Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, New York on a nearly full scholarship where she studies pre-law.

Kalin Freeman  Jazz Saxophone
Kalin was raised a few blocks from Richmond’s Iron Triangle neighborhood and did not learn an instrument until he was a freshman in high school and joined the Diploma Program. He now leads the jazz group, Soul Progressions.

Victor McElhaney  Jazz Percussion
As a role model for the younger generation and a talented jazz drummer, Victor demonstrated presence of mind, leadership and resilience. Victor attended USC Thornton School of Music, studying jazz drumming/percussion.

Jordan Simmons  Capoeira, Shakuhachi Flute, Theater
A Richmond native, Jordan became a Center student in the 1970s and joined the faculty in 1978. He became Artistic/Executive Director in 1985, and is a Capoeira Mestre, shakuhachi teacher, and theater director.

Rodrigo Perez  Trumpet, Son
Rodrigo’s parents are immigrants from Sinaloa, Mexico and Rodrigo’s devotion to the Mexican Son art form is a testament to his commitment to his cultural roots. He now attends Cal Poly, studying Aerospace Engineering.

Deontae Watkins  Hip Hop
As a Diploma student, Deontae attended 15 hours of classes/rehearsals a week. He is now starting his own dance crew and is back at the Center as a dance faculty member.

Pinkie Young  Flute
Pinkie went on to study geology and environmental science at Occidental College where she graduated in 2017. Pinkie now works as a Staff Geologist at Environmental Applications, Inc. in Pasadena.

Fernando Espinosa  Guitar
In the fall of 2013, Fernando was admitted to UC Santa Cruz on scholarship, the first of his family to do so. He is currently serving in the US Navy and being trained in advanced electronics.
In the past ten years, nearly 200 teens have received diplomas in the now six-year, tuition-free instructional journey of over 2,500 hours, and many have become the first in their families to attend college, while a growing number have overcome serious stress and trauma related to personal and environmental violence, poverty, learning disabilities, race, gender discrimination and systems challenges. Recent Diploma graduates are attending academic institutions including Boston’s Berklee College of Music, UC Berkeley, UCLA, USC, UC Davis, Dartmouth, Occidental, Wesleyan, Sarah Lawrence, Columbia, Yale and Scotland’s Royal Conservatory of Theater, a majority on scholarship. The number of Young Artist Diploma Program participants has more than doubled in recent years to a current cohort of 140. This spring, 22 senior high school Diploma students are on track to attend colleges around the country. The market value of the Diploma Program is approximately $9,000 annually per student. We are able to provide the program for approximately $5,000 per student.

In 2017, the Center made a strategic decision to consolidate its access and outreach resources to be used within the Southside of Richmond by partnering with Kennedy Family of Schools staff, WCCUSD leadership, and parents in order to influence school climate, student achievement and well-being. As of fall 2019, the Initiative provides 3,500 students with weekly music instruction at six core Southside schools with pilot programming at three other JFK feeder schools, one neighborhood community center and one public housing complex. In addition to our Deep Roots Wide World music curriculum – from classical African drumming to recorder, jazz, orchestral music, Mexican son and steel pans, the Kennedy initiative provides for professional development workshops supporting classroom teachers’ use of the arts to strengthen other core academic subjects, artist assemblies, African American focused after school curriculum (Mafanikio) and parent/leadership work. The Center’s multi-year plan is to gradually engage up to 4,000 children and youth annually with increasingly positive culture and climate impacts in South Richmond schools, improved arts education equity in the district and a clear pathway for individual students from South Richmond to East Bay Center’s intensive instructional programs.

Over the years, the Center has developed a robust in-house practice of helping our students integrate their training with their lives outside of the Center. In April 2018, with key individual donor investment, the Center hired its first full-time Director of Student Support Services, dedicated to increasing the range and scope of services that our youth – indeed all youth – need to thrive in challenging artistic, academic, and community environments. Overall, Center resources now include three MSWs on staff, as well as three MSW interns and a network of direct services, programs and partnerships that provide Center students and families with timely and professional wrap-around support. Student Support Services also include year-round college readiness support programs for 140 Young Artist Diploma students, as well as annual professional training for all 75 Center staff and faculty on topics from understanding a trauma-informed lens to adapting curriculum for different stages of youth and young adult development.
